Nightlife

Everyone knows that the best times are had in the evenings! It is at night when we all let our hair down and let loose for a few hours. As college students we like to think of this as "relieving stress." Some of us take a more active approach and start dancing on the tables, others find themselves in the Games Room trying to break high score on the pinball machines. And some of us just seem to find that a few extra "Z's" are all that we need. Many students head out for a night with friends. But somehow, morning always seems to creep in.

Money, MAC and Wash

What's made out of paper, green with pictures of former presidents on the front, and always in demand? MONEY! How many times have you had to take a last minute stop at the MAC machine before that night out on the town? Too many, right? And how many times have you had to go through all of your pockets scrounging for quarters for the washer to do that dreaded chore-laundry? Well, just think, before we know it we'll be out in the real world, earning some real money (hopefully)! But until then we'll have to scrounge just like everyone other college student, hoping each time we slide our MAC card into the slot it's not the last time we see it.

ONE WAY

Tide

Studing

At Bloomsburg the students are really interested in studying . . . NOT! Actually, if you want to see someone that you haven't seen in a while, just go to the library. Most students end up at the library at one time or another. Usually you can tell the people who have a paper due the next day or a big test coming up by the look on their faces. It's that look a person has when all they want to do is tear out their hair. So if you want to see the students of Bloomsburg studying, you can either wait 'til finals week, or really late at night, or (for that overly stressed out friend with 18 credits) look in a very remote spot that nobody would ever think of, and you will see those B.U. students studying (er, cramming) their hearts out. "Cause we all know, when the going get tough, the tough get cramming!"

Around Town

Bloomsburg, the only town in Pennsylvania, is small enough to feel like home, but big enough to have a variety of stores, boutiques and eateries for the many college students. As they walk down the tree lined streets, students come across a wide range of shops including the Que Pasa Boutique, which has all the latest fashions; the Costume Shop, and the Husky Corners Mall, which is complete with a tanning spa, fitness center and the Good Lookin' Salon. Of course, after their shopping sprees, students replenish their funds at the MAC machine and then its off to CVS for those personal needs. At the end of the day everyone stops for a quick treat at the Candy Barrel or Phillip's Emporium. For a night out on the town, students can go to the Alvina Krause Theatre and then its off to Hess's Tavern for those who are lucky enough to be legal; and for those who aren't – Sal's and Berrigan's are the place to be.

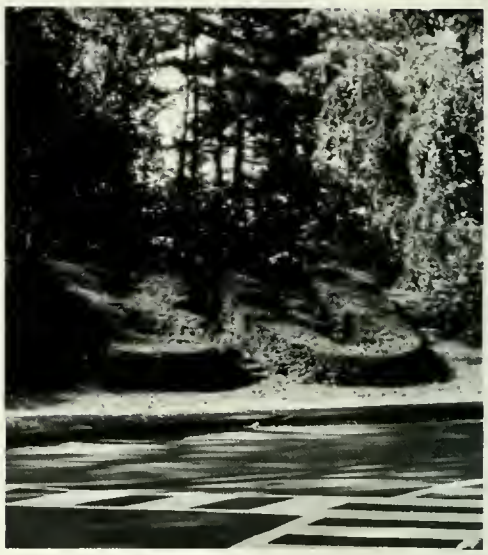
Our Campus

Bloomsburg University is often referred to as, "the friendly college on the hill." Located on College Hill above the "only town in Pennsylvania", B.U. covers 173-acres of the Appalachian foothills of north-central Pennsylvania. The atmosphere of the campus is created by the unique blend of historic and modern buildings. Currently our campus is also going through a growth spurt. With the addition of the recreation center and the soon to come library, we can only imagine the change that has overcome Bloomsburg University from it's original start in 1839 as an academy to teach youth the elements of a classical education.



Fall Move-In

August 22nd and 23rd, the days to move in to our Bloomsburg homes finally came. We woke up early in the morning to pack up the car and face the traffic on the highway. It was a new beginning for all. Freshmen moved into the halls for the first time, upperclassmen moved into halls, Upper Campus Apartments, and off-campus housing. We registered by computer, and then bought our books at the University Store. When it was time to say good-bye to Mom and Dad, hopefully they sliped you a few extra bucks and then you had to figure out where you were going to put everything. Wing meetings and fire drills, Commons food and microwave popcorn, quiet hours and cold showers, alarm clocks and snoring roommates; a new year has begun.

Community Street Fest

On September 12, the town and the university community came together once again for the Community Street Fest. Main Street was blocked off to traffic and the street filled with people. There was plenty of food, games, shopping and fun for all. Whether you were "pitching for plants", fishing for prizes, eating sausage and funnel cake, meeting your neighbors or running into old friends, the Community Street Fest was a success.

Parent's Weekend

From September 16th-18th we opened the doors to our home away from home for our parents. It was time once again to get out the vacuum and Windex and clean up so mom wouldn't be too disappointed. There were many activities to choose from. First, there was a picnic lunch, then there were several home sporting events to choose from; Soccer, Field Hockey, Football or all of the above. After the games, it was time for a nice dinner out with mom and dad and then off to the Celebrity Artist's performance of Shirley Valentine. Even the rain couldn't keep us away from supporting the Huskies while spending some quality time with our parents. Even though we may not have said it out loud- it really was nice to see you again. Thanks Mom and Dad!

Bloomsburg Fair

As the Bloomsburg Fair came to town this September, everyone anticipated all of the food, activities, and entertainment that provides pleasure for children of all ages year after year. Children beamed with excitement as they approached the rides and the farm animals. Everyone enjoyed the many delicious foods the fair had to offer. Whether it was sausage, pizza, french fries, ice cream, or cotton candy, there was sure to be a treat for everyone. As always, the fair offered several live concerts. If it was John Michael Montgomery and Faith Hill, Richard Marx, Billy Ray Cyrus, Clint Black, or All 4 One, the crowd was pleased. Once again, the Bloomsburg Fair has proved to be a muddy, oops - nice beginning to the fall semester.

Homecoming

The weekend of October 22nd, was designated as a weekend of celebration, a weekend for alumni to come back to Bloomsburg and remember the "good times." The theme this year was, "Through the Decades." We were reminded of the history and growth of our school from its days as a State Normal School through the present day. Banners were judged and awarded prizes and the King and Queen were crowned. Unfortunately, the celebrations this year were not so happy. Early Friday October 21st, five Bloomsburg University students died in a terrible fire. A moment of silence was observed before the start of the football game to remember our friends and loved ones, Kyle Barton, Deborah Keeler, Derek Mooney, James Palmer, and Joseph Selena. Dr. Jessica Kosloff and representatives from the Beta Sigma Delta fraternity and the Chi Sigma Rho sorority addressed the crowd. Homecoming has always been a time to remember, let us always remember the special times we have had with our friends here during our years at B.U.

Siblings' and Children's Weekend

The weekend of April 28th brought both the Renaissance Jamboree and Siblings' Weekend together at Bloomsburg University. The Jamboree brings the community and campus together for a fun-filled day including events such as an arts and crafts show, square dancing, baton twirling, and plenty of food. This weekend also allows the students of BU to invite brothers, sisters, nieces, nephews, and other children to share a special weekend at the University. Aside from the Renaissance Jamboree, the Program Board made Siblings' Weekend fun for all with games, sand art and various other activities. Whatever the event, participants enjoyed themselves on this festive occasion.

Student Recreation Center

Over the past year the Student Recreation Center has evolved from a hole in the ground to an organized structure for fitness and training. The Student Recreation Center contains facilities for basketball, volleyball, racquetball, weight training, nautilus equipment, aerobics/dance room, indoor track, badminton court, tennis court, and men's and women's locker facilities. The Rec. Center is open, early in the morning to late in the evening, to all individuals possessing Community Activities passes. The Rec. Center provides a variety of activities despite your individual athletic interests.

Bloomsburg

Library

For some time now Bloomsburg University has been planning for a new library. The new library will have four levels, seating for more than 1,000 students, 18 study group rooms, word processing rooms, night study rooms, intercoms on all levels for questions and much more. The new library site was dedicated on October 22, 1994. Although the library will not be done in time for most of us to use, it will be accessible to the public. So come back and see the finished product.

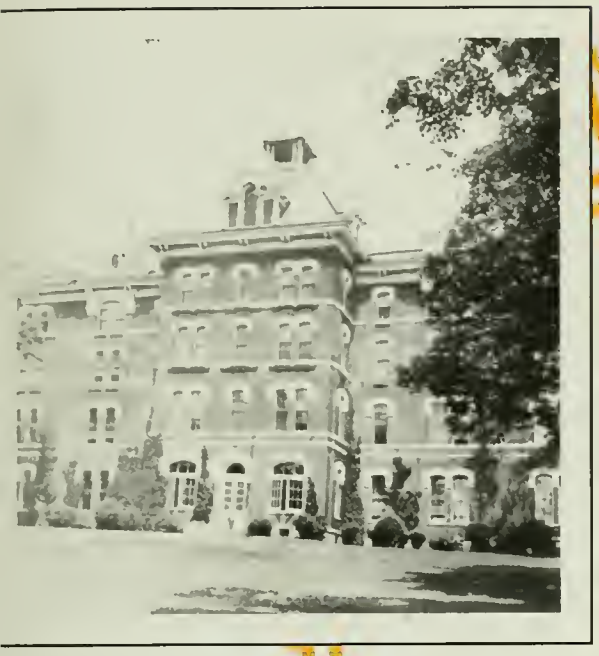
History



...A New Beginning

Academy, Literary Institute, Literary Institute and State Normal School, State Teachers College, State College, University - such has been the metamorphosis of our present University in Bloomsburg. It is difficult to believe that the history of our school dates back over a century, when electricity, automobiles, hard surface roads and other luxuries common to us today were either unheard of or still in their infancy. But the fact is, that in 1839 a private academy was opened in the town of Bloomsburg. It was successfully conducted for two years by C.P. Waller, a graduate of Williams College. Later, public school teachers taught at the academy during their summer vacations...

In 1856, D. J. Waller, drew up a charter providing that this school be known as the Bloomsburg Literary Institute for the promotion of education in the ordinary and the higher branches of English literature, ancient and modern languages, and the sciences. This charter was subscribed to by worthy citizens of Bloomsburg.

In 1866, the school was taught by Henry Carver, of Binghamton, New York. His was an unusual influence and personality, and he had much to do with molding the school's early policies. He saw the need for a new building, and insisted that it was essential to the future development of the Institute. Mr. Carver assured the trustees that $15,000 would build a suitable building. When people expressed their doubts that the type of building which he had planned could be built for that amount, he assumed, in addition to his regular duties as teacher, the offices of architect and contractor. His energy and enthusiasm seemed boundless...

That building, the present Carver Hall, was dedicated on April 4, 1867, with a gala observance by the townspeople. A parade, headed by the town band, marched from the old building, somewhere near the present Catholic church, to the new one. A fine bell for the tower was purchased with $1200 secured through popular subscription raised by three members of the first class at the new school - D. J. Waller, Jr., George E. Elwell, and Charles Unangst.

In the autumn of 1867, James P. Wickersham, then State Superintendent of Public Instruction, was travelling through Bloomsburg on the train. He saw the school on the hill "ablaze with lights," and thought the location of the Literary Institute would be ideal for a State Normal School. Negotiations were begun, and in 1868 at a meeting in which Mr. Wickersham addressed the citizens of Bloomsburg, it was decided that under the act of 1857 a normal school could be established. Consequently, a dormitory was built at a cost of $36,000. On February 19, 1869, the school recognized as a State Normal School, combined with the Literary Institute. In September of that year, there were 150 students enrolled in the Normal Department and 80 in the Model School...

Rare view of Waller Hall after the disastrous fire of 1875.

Principal Carver left in 1871. Charles G. Barkley, Esq., a former county superintendent of schools, acted as principal from December, 1871, to March, 1872. His successor was the Reverend Hewitt, rector of the Bloomsburg Episcopal Church. He served as principal until June, 1873. Dr. T.L. Griswold was then principal until 1877. Those early years were trying ones, full of dissapointments and hardships. Subscriptions were hard to collect, and often the trustees met obligations on their personal responsibility. Another blow came in 1875, when the dormitory was completely destroyed by fire. However, the trustees and people who had failth and confidence in the school again furnished money, and in 1876 built a larger and more handsome building, Waller Hall...

In the fall of 1877, Dr. D. J. Waller, Jr., became principal. For thirteen years the school grew under his guidance. The Model School (Noetling Hall) and the east wing of the dormitory were built during his time as principal. When Dr. Waller resigned in 1890 to become State Superintendent of Public Instruction, the school was in a prosperous condition. Dr. Judson P. Welsh served as principal of the Bloomsburg Literary Institute and State Normal School from 1890 to 1906. During his administration the gymnasium and an addition to the four-story dormitory were built. Science Hall, built from plans made by Dr. D.S. Hartline, was completed in 1906, just after Dr. Welsh's resignation...

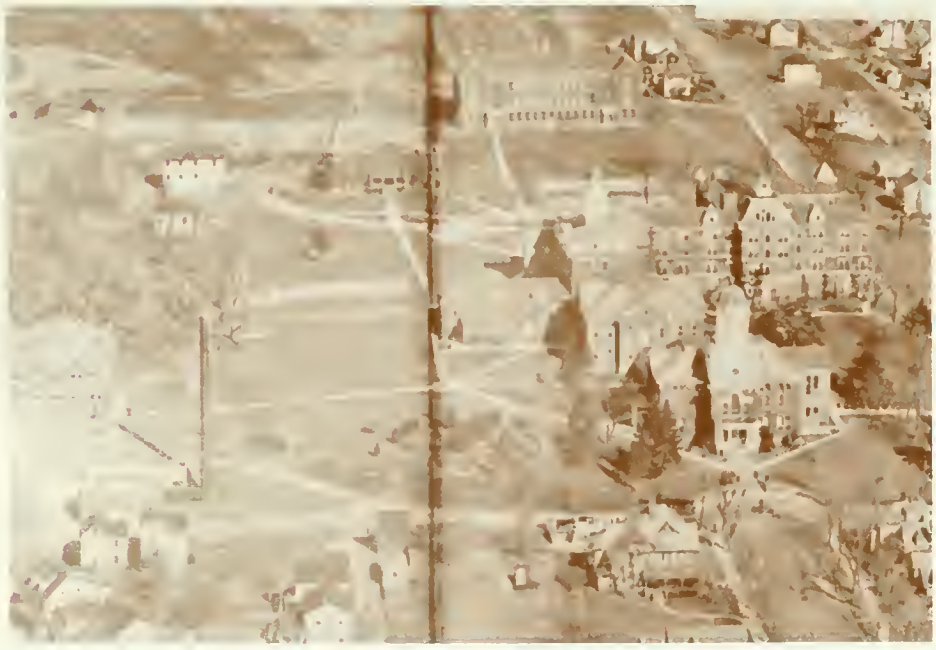
Dr. D. S. Hartline

Dr. D. J. Waller, Jr., responded a second time to the summons of the trustees, and returned as principal until 1920, when he retired from active duty. He was succeeded by Dr. Charles H. Fisher, who came to the school from the State Department of Public Instruction. His principalship extended from 1920 to 1923. It was in 1920 that the State purchased the school and changed the name to the Bloomsburg State Normal School, dropping the "Bloomsburg Literary Institute." During Dr. Fisher's administration extension courses were instituted and the Bloomsburg public schools were opened to the teacher training service of the Normal School. Dr. G. C. L. Riemer, also from the State Department of Public Instruction, followed Dr. Fisher and served until 1927...

The State Council of Education of June 4, 1926, authorized the State Normal School to confer the degree B.S. in Education to graduates of four-year courses in Elementary Education and in Junior High School Education. May 15, 1927, the Council changed the name to State Teachers College at Bloomsburg.

Dr. Francis B. Haas, also a former State Superintendent of Public Instruction, succeeded Dr. Riemer in July, 1927. During the administration of Dr. Francis B. Haas the curricula offered by the college were enriched by the establishment of a Commercial Department under the direction of Professor H.A. Andruss...

WOODROW LITWHILER, Captain 1936



Francis B. Haas

Under the administration of President Francis B. Haas (1927-1939) great progress was made in the teacher education program, and a new degree program in business education was initiated.

Upon the appointment of Dr. Haas as State Superintendent of Public Instruction in 1939, Dr. Harvey A. Andruss, then Dean of Instruction and a former Director of the Business Education Department, was appointed president, a position he held until his retirement in 1969. During World War II, the U.S. Navy V-12 Office Training Program was conducted on the Bloomsburg campus. As a result, a campus building was renamed Navy Hall. In 1957, a division of special education was instituted, and today Navy Hall still houses the program...

In 1960, the school's name was changed to Bloomsburg State College. Authorization was received shortly thereafter to grant the Bachelor of Arts degree for liberal arts programs in humanities, social sciences, and natural sciences/mathematics. Graduate study, leading to the Master of Education degree, also was inaugurated in 1968, approval was received for the Master of Arts degree, in 1976 for the Master of Business Administration, and in 1982 for the Master of Science in Nursing. A cooperative doctoral program in elementary education began in 1982...

...A New Beginning

1995... A New Beginning... A New President

Dr. Jessica Sledge Kozloff began her duties as the 18th president of Bloomsburg University on July 1, 1994.

Dr. Kozloff formerly served as vice president for academic and student affairs for the State Colleges of Colorado, consisting of Western State College, Mesa State College, Adams State College and the urban campus of Metropolitan State College in Denver.

Prior to joining the Colorado system, Dr. Kozloff served several positions at the University of Northern Colorado, including executive assistant to the president, assistant to the vice president for academic affairs and assistant dean of students and director of academic advising.

Dr. Kozloff has held faculty positions at the University of Nevada - Reno, Colorado State University, the University of Northern Colorado and Metropolitan State College.

While at the University of Northern Colorado, she taught numerous graduate courses in college student personnel administration and leadership.

Dr. Kozloff also served as an American Council of Education Fellow during the 1985-86 academic year and was elected chair of the Council of Fellows in 1992.

She has been a member of the Commission on Higher Education, the Technical Advisory Committee to the Higher Education Scorecard Project, and the Task Force on Foreign Language Education and Cultural Studies.

Dr. Kozloff has also been a project consultant for the Effective State Action to Improve Undergraduate Education and has been a panelist and moderator at many administrative workshops.

A Texas native, she earned a doctorate of philosophy degree in political science from Colorado State University and holds a master of arts degree in political science and a bachelor of science degree in education from the University of Nevada - Reno. An author, lecturer and consultant, she is an associate with the Academic Affairs Resource Center of the American Association of State Colleges and Universities.

Department of Music

"Our students have the advantage of being in a program that is small enough to ensure they receive personal attention from the faculty to grow musically to their full potential. I enjoy helping students learn the intricate detail of music." -Stephen Wallace, D. Ed.,Chairperson

Music requires self discipline. Musicians have a responsibility to prepare properly. They must love what they're doing and be willing to devote countless hours perfecting their skills.

The Department of Music offers opportunity for creative activity and self-expression as well as the cultivation of student's talents. Students receive an education that prepares them for varied professional opportunities.

The bachelor of arts degree in music allows the music major to select one of two specializations, music history-literature or applied music-voice, piano, organ, strings, woodwinds or brass. Both areas offer strong preparation in harmony-theory, music history, ensemble participation and repertoire.

Bachelor of Arts graduates have a variety of vocational opportunities: private teaching, church music, performing groups, composing and arranging, music libraries, and facets of the music industry such as retail, printing and recording.

Department of Anthropology

"Anthropology majors learn about the diversity and breadth of the human experience. They are exposed to unique opportunities and to a caring and committed faculty. Students learn about the diversity underlying all culture and come to appreciate people for who they are and what they do. Anthropology is the most liberating of all sciences. Students have the opportunity for a career where they are constantly involved in new discoveries and increased cultural understanding." — Robert Reeder, M.S.,M.A., Chairperson

Anthropology promotes global cultural awareness through classroom studies of cultures everywhere. Anthropology, the study of humankind, attempts to establish useful information and generalizations about people, their behavior and their cultural and biological origins, in order to arrive at the fullest possible understanding of human diversity.

At Bloomsburg, anthropology is divided into three areas: cultural anthropology which studies ways of life in societies across the world; physical anthropology which traces human origins and biological variability; and archaeology which seeks to explain human behavior by studying material remains from past cultures.

Study in these three disciplines is interwoven so students come to see the whole picture of humankind: how humans have evolved, what problems they face, what solutions are possible, and what the future might hold.

Department of Art

"The most common motivation for students who study art is the desire for self-expression. Our art faculty recognizes this and we structure our program to that end." — Kenneth Wilson, chairperson

"With courses in ceramics, crafts, design, drawing, photography, graphics, painting, and sculpture, art students with diverse professional aims may pursue creative interests and skills that will be a source of deep personal satisfaction throughout their liftime." Complimenting the will to create is the desire to understand the history and principles of art, to gain an appreciation of great works of art from the past and present, to appreciate the aesthetic and stylistic innovations of any given age, thus gaining an increased awareness of one's artistic and cultural heritage. Within the major there also is a strong undercurrent to perceive art as an academic discipline. Studio courses reflect and support this liberal arts purpose as well as building competence in selected media. Art history courses provide a structure for an understanding of the arts while developing the ability to research and write.

The art program is consistent with the university's aim to be a center of learning in the arts and sciences. Through a finely tailored course of study, art students enjoy opportunities for advanced study and pursue specific career goals, preparing for careers as artists, art historians, museum curators, design and advertising consultants, urban planners, and educators. Students choose between two basic areas of study: art studio and art history.

College of Business

Department of Accounting

"We need to learn new information management skills and constantly evaluate our methods if we are to remain competitive. The intent of the program here at Bloomsburg is to prepare our students not just to enter but to contribute to a professional area of accounting." — Burel Gum, chairperson

"Accounting is the language of business." Approximately 550 undergraduates are currently majoring in accounting, making it one of the most popular programs of study at the university. Housed in the College of Business, the degree program requires a total of 63 semester hours — 27 semester hours devoted to accounting courses- and culminates in a bachelor of science in Business Administration.

The program's curriculum is tailored to address the demands confronted by today's professional accountant. Students learn how to accumulate and summarize information, to anaylze and interpret results, and to present information which often becomes an important element in the decision-making process.

The program also emphasizes the importance of communication skills, both written and oral. The successful accountant spends more time working with people than with numbers, and more time helping others to reach decisions than tabulating figures. Accounting is an information system, not a mathematical system.

Department of Economics

"The wisdom of how we use these scarce resourses will ultimately shape the quality of life for the ourselves and for future generations." — W.B. Lee, Ph.D., chairperson

The Department of Economics at Bloomsburg University offers a systematic study of the economic activities of government, business, and consumers. The core of the curriculum enables you to master basic principles of economics, develop analytical skills, and interpret economic phenomenon. To accommodate the diversity of interests on the undergraduate level, the department has three tracks open to economics majors- two culminate in a bachelor of arts and one in a bachelor of science.

Department of Marketing

"The marketing faculty seek to facilitate the student's learning process through distinct and challenging courses. Courses focus on major knowledge segments within the marketing discipline. Faculty encourage and stimulate students to research, understand, and apply marketing knowledge. Students and faculty are partners in the learning process through their active efforts in and outside the classroom." — Stephen S. Batory, DBA.,chairperson

Students majoring in marketing study the free enterprise system and the process by which products are produced, distributed and sold in the market palce. All aspects of the distribution of goods, ideas and services, from advertising and market research to sales promotion and consumer behavior studies, come under review in contemporary marketing analysis.

One of the strongest assets of the Department of Marketing is the faculty. Experienced in the field and active in professional marketing organizations, they frequently give presentations and publish articles on marketing to remain on the "cutting edge" of the field. They take pride in their ability to offer students one-to-one attention with a nurturing environment.

College of Professional Studies

Department of Curriculum and Foundations

"Teachers specializing in elementary education find satisfaction and a measure of pride in guiding young children as they experience their initial excitement and fulfillment in learning. Teachers focusing on secondary education have opportunities to guide youth as they shape their first adult thinking." — William O'Bruba, Ph.D., chairperson

Working with young children and feeling the excitement of watching human learning at its earliest stages are at the heart of early childhood education. By the year 2000, the United States is expected to experience a severe shortage of teachers. The Department of Curriculum and Foundations includes teacher education programs in elementary, early childhood, and secondary education; educational foundations; and the Reading Clinic. All departments are accredited.

Facilities are modern and up-to-date technologies are available including a course in educational computing. A state-of-the-art computer laboratory enables students to learn current advances in computer-assisted instruction. Students are required to spend time observing and assisting in actual classroom settings through two field studies courses offered in the sophomore and junior years. These courses prepare students for the actual student teaching experience.

Campus Living

...A New Beginning

Elwell Hall

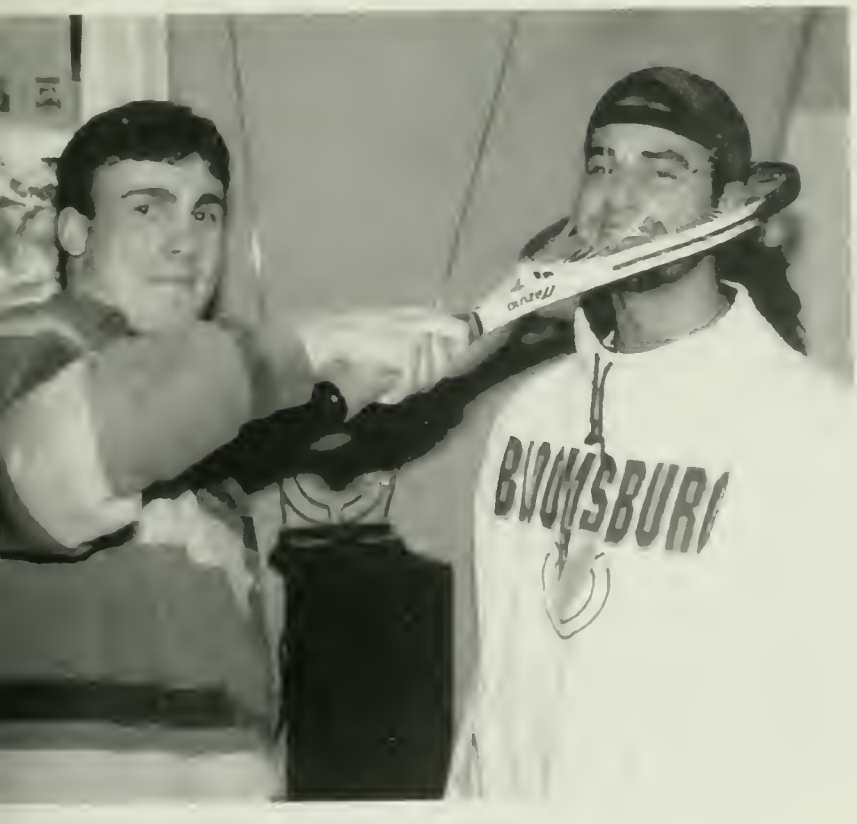
What is 9-stories high, is about the length of a football field, and houses over 600 females? Why it's Elwell Hall, of course.

Elwell Hall was completed in 1968 and was named in honor of Judge William Elwell, a former trustee; his son George E. Elwell, a graduate and a former trustee; and his grandson G. Edward Elwell, a graduate and a French instructor at the university. It is the only hall on campus that is not named after a neighboring county. In addition to over 300 rooms, Elwell has recreation rooms and lounges, a guest suite, study rooms, computer lab, and apartments for staff. The Campus Child Center, the Residence Life Office, and the AFSCME office are all located on the ground floor.

Rumor has it, "Hotel Elwell" is the largest women's residence hall of all the Pennsylvania State System of Higher Education residence halls.

Montour Hall

Montour Hall is a four-story male residence hall. It houses 250 students and is divided into 2 wings complete with recreation and lounge facilities, study rooms, guest suites, and apartments for resident staff members. It's original construction was completed in 1964; the same year as Schuylkill Hall.



Columbia Hall

The newest residence hall on campus, completed in 1970, is nestled in a corner of the campus allowing for a little bit of privacy. It is 9-stories high and houses 400 students and a special apartment for the Residence Director. Every odd floor is equipped with kitchenettes, microwaves, and a television lounge. The even floors are used as study lounges.

The huge hall lounge, on the first floor, has a sound proof piano room, a sewing machine, an excercise bike, a pool table, and vending machines. Columbia is an active hall and hosts movies, aerobics, and parties in its lounge.

To the women that live in Columbia Hall, its their, "home away from home."

Luzerne Hall

This men's hall that houses approximately 300 students is located right in the heart of the Bloomsburg University Campus.

Luzerne was completed in 1967 and houses a recreation and t.v. room, and an apartment for the Residence Director on the first floor. There are also t.v. lounges and quiet study rooms on the other 3 floors.

The friendships and memories made in Luzerne last a lifetime.

Lycoming Hall

Lycoming Hall is the smallest women's residence hall on campus. It was opened in the fall of 1976. It houses 250 students on 5 floors; the ground floor is reserved for upperclassmen.

The women in Lycoming enjoy the flexibility found within each room. Because the furniture is not fixed, as in the other 6 halls, the residents find it ver easy and fun to play the role of interior designers by moving the furniture around.

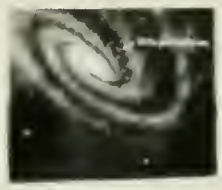
Northumberland Hall

"North" is one of the 3 male residence halls. It is situated in the heart of the university campus opposite Luzerne Hall. It houses about 200 students on 3 floors. The first floor consists of a large game room, equipped with a ping pong table and vending machines. Northumberland's original construction was completed in 1960.

Schuylkill Hall

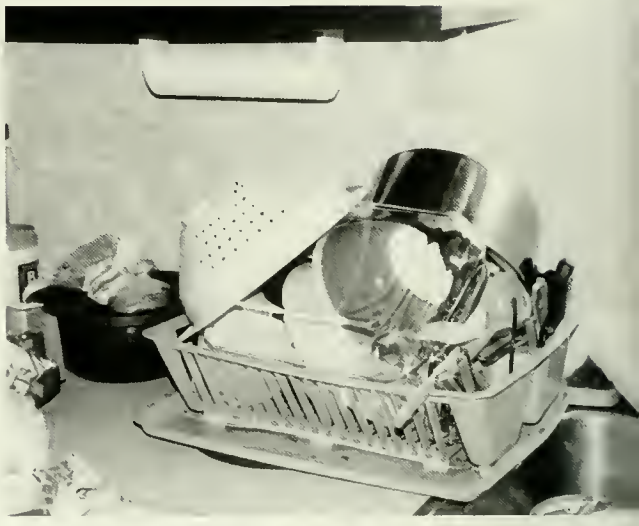
Schuylkill Hall is a four story facility completed in 1964. It houses 250 women and is divided into 2 wings complete with recreation and lounge facilities, study rooms, guest suites, and apartments for the residence staff members. Schuylkill is located at the lower end of campus between Carver and Old Science Halls.

Montgomery Place Apartments



Montgomery Place Apartments provide students with a taste of off-campus living and is a dress rehersal for life after graduation. Located on Upper Campus, Montgomery Apartments are a residence hall option for Juniors and Seniors. The shuttle bus provides transportation to and from Lower Campus.

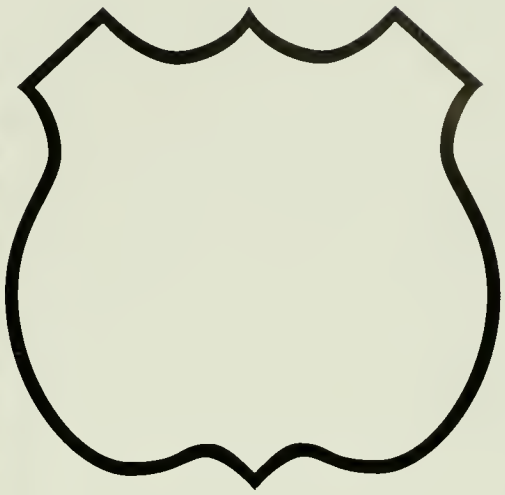
Off Campus

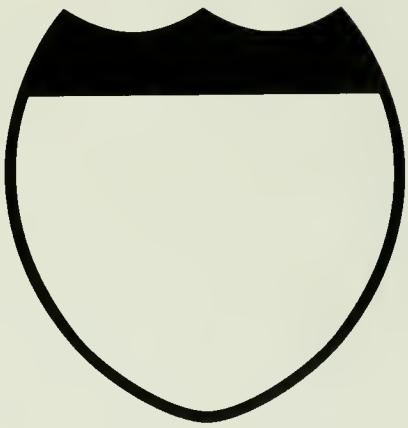


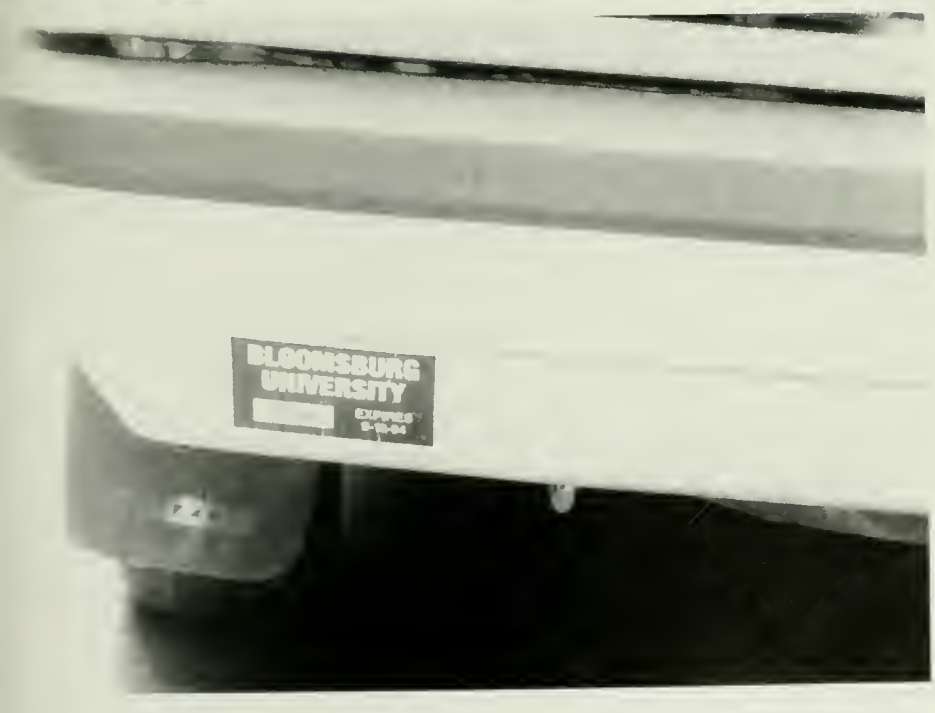
One of the most exciting, yet overwhelming decisions a Bloomsburg student will make is to move off campus, and with whom and where. If you look around the town you will find many students living in housing on Iron Street, Penn Street, Glenn Avenue, Third Street, Main Street, and Lightstreet Road to name a few.

Off campus life provides an alternative way of living - one with many responsibilities, excitement, and independence. Most student tend to move off campus after one or two years in the residence halls.

Commuter







Any student who lives at least one mile from the Bloomsburg University campus is a commuter student. Whether you live down Main Street or as far away as Williamsport, Hazelton, Berwick, or Danville, the daily commute becomes a vital part of your college career. Of course, getting to campus is only a small part of the battle. Once you have gotten here parking becomes the main problem.

Women's Soccer

The Huskies swept through the PSAC season with a perfect 9-0 record. They are ranked 8th in the Intercollegiate Soccer Association of America Division II poll. They finished the regular season with a 14-1-2 record , just one win shy of the school record for wins in a season. The success of the team has been a combination of a potent offense and a stingy defense. The Huskies scored an average of 3.4 goals per game, while allowing only 0.56 goals per game. Leading the offensive frenzy for Bloomsburg is freshman Rebecca Creedon, who has scored 14 goals and had 4 assists. Senior Denise Pecoraro scored 4 goals and a team-best 11 assists. Senior Holly Panichelli has 7 goals and 4 assists. In the net for the Huskies, junior goaltender Amy Linn has seen the majority of the action, posting 6 solo shutouts and owning a goals against average of 0.63.

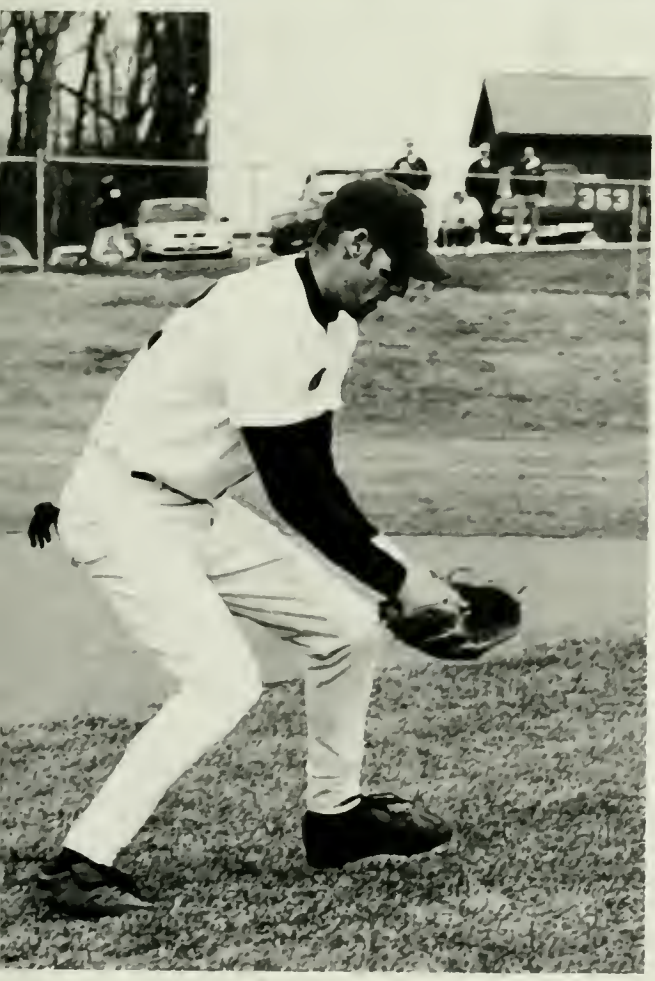
Baseball



A trip to the PSAC Championships would have made this season a success under fifth year coach Matt Haney. The Huskies achieved their third conference postseason appearance in the 23-year history of the conference, and after falling to Mansfield in the PSAC title game, the Huskies defeated the Mountaineers at the NCAA North Atlantic Regionals. With the regional title, Bloomsburg earned the school's first World Series bid. Instrumental in the Huskies' success were players Chad Arnold, who has signed a contract with the Philadelphia Phillies' organization, senior third baseman Matt Croyle, senior centerfielder Chet Henicle, and junior reliever Jed Custer.

Softball

Jan Hutchinson and the softball team made the school's sixth overall appearance in the NCAA Division II finals series, and finished runner-up for the second time. A 3-2, extra-inning loss in the national championship, ended the season at 53-6. Strong pitching was a key ingredient as junior April Paoli became the PSAC's season holder with 420 strikeouts in 256 innings and a 37-3 record. The All-American tossed six of the team's record eight no-hitters, two of which were perfect games. Also named All-Americans for the second straight season were shortstop Jen Lefever, who led the team with a .422 batting average, and catcher Brenda Moffat, who batted .360, while leading the team with 44 runs batted in. The PSAC title was the team's 12th in 13 seasons.

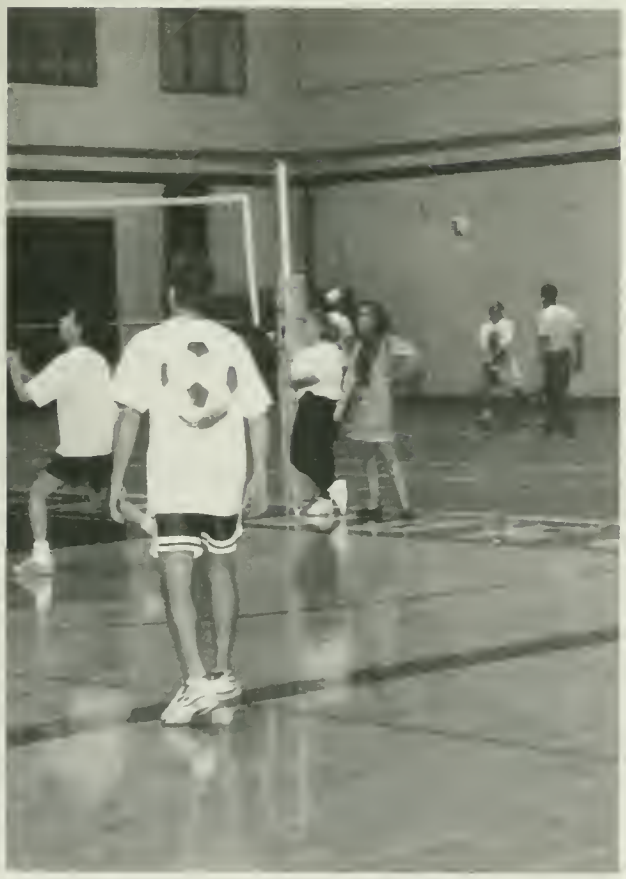
Volleyball



Volleyball is a very common extracurricular activity at Bloomsburg University. Many people play for class, others play for intramurals. But no matter why they play, or where they play, most of them find it fun. At BU you won't find an empty volleyball court for long, because the minute the net goes up, the people come out. So they next time you play volleyball ask the person next to you where they are from and don't be surprised if they reply, "Bloomsburg".

Congratulations Heather Ann Erney

We, the Erney family, are proud of our Bloomsburg heritage. Starting in 1935, when Raymon Erney attended Bloomsburg State Teachers College; until now, our family has graduated: Dana Erney (B.S. Social Science 1968), Diana Erney (B.S. Spanish 1968), Sean (B.S. Communications 1990, M.A. 1993), and now Heather (B.S. Elementary Education). Though Grandfather never graduated, he certainly started this fine tradition for both his son and grandchildren to follow.

Denise Pecoraro

Denise,
We are so very proud of you. You have had four great years. Continued happiness and success.

Best wishes for a SUCCESSFUL, FULFILLING, and HAPPY FUTURE in your career choices.

Love-
Gra'ma

Well, it's time for me to say good-bye and thank you to everyone who has been there for me over the past four years. Please remember that my good-bye is not final, it is only temporary. We will always be together because you are all in my heart. Andrea- V,,I. I wish I had the space to list every memory I have of us together, but obviously I don't. I know we'll be friends forever and the memories will never end. Kelli- You've come a long way baby! I can't believe it's all over; laughter, tears, hugs, and headaches - I think we've seen it all. Lori -Should we go out to lunch after our naps? Thanks for so many good times. See you out here in the Real World in December. Monique- Hey, do you want to go to Pittsburg tomorrow? Thanks for bringing me out of my shell. Ron- You have been one of my best friends. Thank you for all of our long hours of heart-to-hearts. Keith- Well, Bubbles, is someone having a baby? No, da! Best of Luck in Hawaii. Matt- Thanks for being like a brother to me. Denise- I couldn't have asked for a better Freshman roommate. Holly- Did that really happen or was it just some crazy dream? What a night! Justin- Mrs. Doubtfire and Dr. Doby, thanks for keeping me laughing. Go Yankees! John- Tower 1 to Tower 2, Tower 2 to Tower 3, and Tower 4 to Tower 5. I love you. Mom, Dad, Dee, and Fudoo- Thanks for putting up with me! I love you all! Love, Lynda

Bloomsburg University ranked nationally as a "best value"

Bloomsburg University has been rated a "Best Value" in higher education among regional universities by U.S. News and World Report magazine. ■ In the U.S. News best value rankings, published in October 1994, Bloomsburg University is ranked fourth among regional universities in the northern part of the nation. Other regions represented in the survey are south, west and midwest areas of the nation. ■ The best value rankings are based on a quality score U.S. News determined using a variety of factors and dividing that score by the total of tuition, fees and room and board for the 1994-95 academic year. Only institutions with a quality score in the top 20 percent in their region or top 50 percent in the nation were even considered for the best value rankings. ■ In placing fourth on the survey, Bloomsburg University is ranked with Trenton State College, which is first; SUNY College at Geneseo, N.Y., second; and Rutgers State University at Camden, N.J., third. ■ Bloomsburg University was rated based upon its tuiton for out-of-state students of $3,676 per semester for a total yearly cost of $11,400 including room, board and fees. A second component of the survey lists university values by taking into account grants that students receive. However, public universities such as Bloomsburg, are still ranked based upon their out-of-state tuition. ■ Ninety percent of Bloomsburg students are Pennsylvania residents, and pay $1,477 tuition per semester for a yearly cost of $7,010 a year including room, board and fees. ■ This is not the first time that national publications have taken notice of Bloomsburg University. In 1990, Money magazine ranked Bloomsburg University 30th for its quality relative to price in comparison to public institutions throughout the nation. In 1993, U.S. News and World Report ranked Bloomsburg in the top 25 percent of northern regional colleges and universities.
